

October 28, 2011

Manufacturer Plans Dayton Expansion

Hohman Plating, a Dayton-based manufacturer offering custom metal coating solutions, will expand its north Dayton facility and add 25 jobs to its existing staff of nearly 140 over the next three years.

Hohman serves the aerospace, automotive and other industries, with customers including GE, Honeywell, Lockheed Martin, NASA and other leading companies and organizations.

The Dayton City Commission approved a $25,000 development grant at its October 26 meeting to support Hohman's investment of $500,000 in the Dayton plant.

The investment will allow Hohman to purchase and install new assets including coating equipment, operating systems and engineering controls.

"We are happy to support the growth of this long-time Dayton business," Mayor Gary Leitzell said. "Hohman recognizes the strengths of Dayton's workforce, resources and strategic business location."

BizBites Archive

Mayor Gary Leitzell, Commissioners Dean Lovelace, Joey D. Williams, Matt Joseph & Nan Whaley